SHORT-BALLOT FEATURES AS SUGGESTED BY W. A. BRYAN

Civic Federation Leader Makes Address on Proposed Municipal Government

Heartily endorsing the idea of an elective commission, or short ballot system of government for the city of Honolulu, Prof. W. A. Bryan of the College of Hawaii, at a meeting of the Church Club in the Davies Memorial building yesterday evening, offered a tentative plan for a government of this character, arranged to fit his idea of the needs of this city. The outline offered is merely suggestive, he said, and intended mainly to form the basis of discussion on the subject.

Realizing, he said, that the very poorest form of government can be made to serve the city well when it is in the hands of conscientious and capable men, and that the very best system can be made to fail in the hands of unscrupulous or incapable administrators, he nevertheless was convinced that the reduction or centralization of power and responsibility offered by the elective commission, with its direct control by the people, is better than any other system yet tried in America.

In this connection he took occasion to sprinkle a few flowers over the "extinct craters" of Honolulu, asserting that, considering all things, the administration of the last few years has been fairly satisfactory.

Briefly he outlined his plan for a commission form of government to fit the local situation. He would have five commissioners, elected by popular vote, without party affiliation being considered, form the city commission, council or board of supervisors.

Upon one feature Mr. Bryan lay considerable emphasis, and that is the plan of permitting the head of a department the privilege of handing over his salary to a capable assistant, in other words, of naming a manager for his particular department. Under the scheme outlined by Mr. Bryan, the whole commission might name a city manager, or each of the members might name a manager for his department, provided, however, that the commissioner continues to assume the responsibility of the office to which he is elected.

"Under this plan," said Mr. Bryan, "a leading businessman, whose knowledge, experience and judgment would be invaluable assets, might very likely be willing to accept the responsibility of election to a commissionership, as much of the detailed work could be done by a manager for his department, who would take his salary or part of it."

In his address last night, Prof. Bryan said in part: "The plan of the elective commission, or short ballot system of city government, in its essential features is simple government simplified to the final degree. Five features are found in all commission laws and for the sake of clearness may be here stated: The Five Features.

"The first feature, and the fundamental one of all, is that the legislative and the administrative authority in the city are exercised by one and the same body.

"Then, second, each member of this body—which may be called at pleasure the commission or council or supervisors—is placed in charge of a division of the work of the city.

"Third: the board is small, never having more than ten, and usually, and preferably, not more than five.

"Fourth: all of these members are elected by the voters of the entire city and never by wards or districts.

"Finally, fifth, in addition to ordinary methods of publicity one or more methods of popular and direct control are included, such as the referendum, which, under certain rules, enables the voters to compel their commissioners to reconsider, or repeal, or submit ordinances objected to, to the vote of the people; the initiative, which enables the people to originate, present, and if necessary, pass ordinances; and lastly the recall, which enables the people when the majority so wills, to remove unworthy members from the commission.

"As to the commission organization itself, I would suggest, if possible, that it be called the council of the City and County of Honolulu and its members commissioners, in order to avoid confusion here and elsewhere as to the titles, acts and powers of the existing board of supervisors. Then, too, a commission government for Honolulu would be understood everywhere and would be an advertising asset.

Form of Commission.
"The council should be composed of five members (including the mayor) all to be elected for four years. To establish continuity in the council two commissioners should be elected biennially and the commissioner designated as mayor by the council, by reason of that fact, should be required to stand for re-election, as commissioner, by the people after his second year in office. Thus every two years the voters would elect or return two new commissioners, re-elect or recall the mayor-commissioner then in office, or else elect three new commissioners. This plan in practice would admit of a continuation and endorsement or an alteration in the city policy by the result of the regular biennial election without the intervention of general partisanship.

"After six months in office all elective officers should be subject to a recall initiated by a petition stating the reason for the demand and signed by at least twenty-five per cent of the citizens voting at the last preceding election.

"The limits of the city should be the limits of the island since the interests of the whole island are closely knit together with the city proper. Provision should be made, however, to admit of the formation of boroughs with some degree of local government at a later time.

"The salary of the commissioners should be $3000 per annum, but each commissioner on election should be allowed discretion, by which if he chooses, but with the consent of his associates, he may divide his salary, retaining not more than $600 for himself as head of his department, paying at least $2400 to an administrative assistant to be appointed by him with the consent and approval of, and subject to dismissal from the council.

For a City Manager.
"The council should also have power after election by a four-fifths vote (but not until sufficient opportunity has been given for referendum proceedings if there should develop popular disapproval) to appoint a city manager who, under the council as a body, would be the administrative head of the city—enforcing territorial and municipal laws.

His salary should be not less than four or five thousand dollars per annum and should be paid month by month from a fund made up pro rata and deducted from the salaries of the commissioners.

"The mayor should be appointed by the council to serve as the head of the city government and should receive $3600. But as mayor he should be required to stand for popular approval and re-election to the council every two years.

"As to special features—just one word and I am done. In addition to the plan of endorsing the selection of mayor, and thereby the policy of the council which, so far as I know, is now proposed for the first time; and the plan of permitting the head of a department the privilege, with the approval of the council, to divide his salary with one competent assistant, which, I believe, is also new; and a plan whereby, if desirable, the council after election can, by a four-fifths majority, elect a city manager to be the business head of the city government—an adaptation of the Staunton-Lockport idea, I wish to urge the consideration of placing some plan of 'group participation' in the draft of the charter which will admit of various civic, charitable and business organizations entering, under certain regulations, into a definite participating, and advisory relation with the city—as recently proposed by Mr. G. H. Murdoch.

"I also wish to urge for consideration an entirely new idea, namely, that a plan of optional taxation for specific purposes, the proceeds to be voted in public town meeting by the people paying the tax, be considered in the charter as a means of keeping the city not only an efficiently governed city, but one in which an open school is maintained for the encouragement of the proper interest and pride in the city and its affairs, and the development of the citizen as well as the city."

'RECORD SEASON' CONGRESS LIKELY TO PASS BEYOND 'BILLION MARK'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—It will cost $823,415,455.14 to conduct the affairs of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, according to the estimates of the various department heads, submitted today to the speaker of the house by the secretary of the treasury. This amount, which does not include any provision for the postal service, which is expected to be self-supporting, is an increase of $72,074,248 over the appropriations made for the present year by the last congress.

Of this increase, $28,312,220 appears in the estimates of the secretary of the navy, and $29,597,297 represents the increase asked by the navy department in the appropriations for building and equipping new vessels. The estimates would provide for three new battleships to be laid down during the year. This would make up for the lapse of one ship from the two battleships-a-year program caused by the action of the Democratic house in providing but a single ship at the last session of congress.

Pensions Show Increase.
Another $20,000,000 or more of the total increase is shown in the estimates for the payment of pensions. The amount asked for is $185,220,000. Last year but $165,146,470 was expended for pensions. An increase of about the same amount appears in the estimates for public works for the year. The construction of public buildings planned for the year shows an increase of $1,012,530 over the appropriation for the present year, $8,722,200 being asked for that purpose.

The work to be done during the year on the Panama canal will cost $30,174,432, which is $1,130,567 less than the appropriations for the current year. Of this sum $6,769,522 is asked for the purpose of building fortifications and military barracks in the canal zone. This year but $2,325,000 was appropriated for fortifications at Panama.

The estimates forecast another billion-dollar session for congress, for in addition to the $823,415,455, which is the total estimated for the postmaster general estimates that $231,791,508 will be necessary to conduct his department for the year. This amount will be supplied out of the postal revenues and will bring the total estimated appropriations for the year up to $1,105,296,963.

Politics to Play a Part.
Just how these estimates will fare at the hands of the Democratic majority in the house is the subject of considerable conjecture. Some difficulty in passing appropriation bills may follow disagreements between the house and senate. But the supply measures to be passed on the basis of the estimates submitted today will go into effect after the Democrats have taken control of the government, and it is expected that the attitude of the house majority on the questions involved in the estimates will forecast the attitude of the coming administration.

Among the estimates which will develop debate in congress is a demand for $250,000 for the Economy and Efficiency Commission appointed by President Taft.

It was with difficulty that $75,000 was secured for the expenses of the commission this year, and the house Democrats look with little favor on the board. Another troublesome item will be an estimate of $54,500 for the commerce court. The house Democrats endeavored in vain to write into the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill in the closing days of the last session legislation abolishing that court. After the bill had been twice vetoed by the President, funds were provided to keep the court in operation until March 4, 1913. If the provision in the estimates is written into the appropriation bill this year, it will be necessary to secure a deficiency appropriation to run the court from March 4 until the end of the fiscal year.

The general furnishing up of the White House for President Wilson is contemplated by the estimates, which would provide for new roofs for the east and west wings of the executive mansion, and would make available $15,000 for redecorating the east room, the red room and the blue room.
